

Dear Readers,

The Israel Journal of Veterinary Medicine continues to look for innovations to assist our readers and expand our technological capabilities. After much effort, we have something novel that we hope will be enjoyed by many of our readers. The journal now has the capability of adding videos to a published article. In this way, authors will have the ability, in addition to the published article, to present their scientific findings through visual media. Thus, the video will provide the viewer with features supporting the research findings of the article. We have planned it such that videos will be easy to submit. The videos will also be subject to the peer review process.

I envisage that this will be useful for surgeons, those working with imaging (cardiac, gastrointestinal, etc.), laboratory procedures, clinical presentations, behavioral studies, just to mention a few. I look forward to receiving our first video articles.

We are following the number of monthly visits made to our internet site (www.ijvm.org.il) and the results look pleasing:

Month 2019	No. of visits
January	227
February	162
March	227
April	189
May	195
June	278
July	240

Overall an average of 217 visits per month.

The journal has matured and I am now looking for new volunteers as “Section Editors” to function as members of the Editorial Board. Please, for those will to take on the mission, write to me (ijvm10@gmail.com) including the speciality you wish to assume. The assignment is interesting, fulfilling and challenging and does not require a lot of time.

Wishing all our readers a pleasant autumn, lots of flower viewing and a Happy and Healthy New Year.

Dr. Trevor (Tuvia) Waner
Editor-in-Chief
Israel Journal of Veterinary Medicine